

Mahalia Boyd

Counsel

About

Mahalia's practice focuses on complex business disputes in state and federal courts, and arbitration matters. She has represented a diverse array of clients including real estate investment companies, financial institutions, global lifestyle brands, telecommunications companies, and technology companies in claims involving breach of contract, fraud, breach of fiduciary duty, deceptive and unfair trade practices, and violations of securities statutes. Mahalia is a thoughtful and effective attorney that brings simple solutions to difficult legal problems.

Prior to practicing law, Mahalia attended New York University School of Law and Emory University, where she graduated Phi Beta Kappa.
